

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Physiochemical parameters to improve the culturing and sub-culturing (here called cloning) of human embryonic stem cells have been investigated. Low levels of oxygen and higher than expected levels of osmolarity in the culture medium have both been found to contribute to the improved culture of human stem cells.

QBMAD\353046.1